Indian indigenous research has potential to make global impact: dr jitendra singh

New Delhi : Union Minister for Science and Technology Dr Jitendra Singh said on Sunday that India's indigenous research has immense potential to make a global impact. He said nanomedicine would give a new direction and impetus to next-generation precision medicine and personalised healthcare.

Addressing the inaugural session of the World Congress of Nanomedicine 2026 at Vigyan Bhavan in New Delhi, Union Minister Dr Jitendra Singh said nanomedicine is one of the most revolutionary innovations in the field of medicine, capable of bringing unprecedented precision to healthcare. The Union Minister said modern medicine is now moving towards personalised healthcare. Different patients suffering from the same disease may require different treatments based on their genetic profiles, dietary patterns, lifestyles and environmental factors. Nanotechnology, through microscopic interventions at the cellular level, can make such treatments more precise and effective. Its use will enhance the cost-effectiveness of healthcare processes and also provide an impetus to the country's overall economy.
