17th NAREDCO National Convention Set to Spotlight Regulatory Reforms

Ahmedabad, Gujarat's real estate and infrastructure story took centerstage as Ahmedabad hosted a curtain raiser for the 17th NAREDCO National Convention, slated for August 29-30 in New Delhi. Themed "Resilient India: Inclusive, Sustainable, and Future-Ready," the convention is being positioned as India's most influential policy-driven real estate platform.

Ahmedabad's success with smart city projects, ring road infrastructure, and affordable housing models has made it a beacon for mid-sized cities eyeing sustainable urbanisation. Shri Suresh D Patel, Hon. Secretary, NAREDCO and President, NAREDCO Gujarat, remarked: "Gujarat has long been at the forefront of infrastructure-led growth. From industrial parks to sustainable housing, we have built models worth scaling. The upcoming convention will allow us to collaborate on policy reforms that remove bottlenecks in affordable housing, increase private capital inflow and reforms in tax burdens." Key convention topics-such as green materials, RERA reforms, and integrated urban mobility-will hold special relevance for Gujarat's cities navigating their next growth chapter. Dr Niranjan Hiranandani, Chairman, NAREDCO, remarked, "Urban planning is now central to India's economic strategy. With construction accounting for a large portion of carbon emissions, the real estate sector must move from conventional approaches to smart, sustainable models. This means adopting green materials, planning for energy efficiency, and integrating smart infrastructure. India's urban centers have the potential to lead this transition, and Delhi, with its strategic significance, must lead by example. We need public-private cooperation, but more importantly, a shift in mindset where 'green' becomes the default and not the exception."
