New Delhi: A man and a woman who hurled racist abuse on three women from Arunachal Pradesh on camera are allegedly on the run, according to the chief minister of the border state in the northeast region. The first information report (FIR) against the two accused, Harsh Singh and Ruby Jain, said the two confronted the three women after dust started collecting on the stairs due to an electrician's work in the rented flat. Arunachal Pradesh Chief Minister Pema Khandu in a post on X condemned the "shameful incident of racial abuse faced by our three young sisters..." "Such behaviour is absolutely unacceptable and has no place in our society," the chief minister said, adding he

Drunk Driver Goes On Rampage In Tamil Nadu, Rams Shops, Vehicles

Ramanathapuram: A man, allegedly under the influence of alcohol, drove his car recklessly outside a bus terminus in Tamil Nadu's Ramanathapuram district on Monday, injuring one person and damaging roadside shops and several vehicles. A video of the incident, cannot independently verify, shows the car reversing at speed before ramming into a parked car outside the Kamudhi bus terminus. The vehicle then appears to reverse again and surge forward, hitting a two-wheeler. In the visuals, a few two-wheelers are seen fallen on the road amid chaos. As the car gets stuck after the repeated collisions, onlookers surround the vehicle and thrash the driver before the police intervene. The situation was later brought under control.

spoke with the Delhi Police chief after hearing about the incident and demanded swift and strict action. Khandu said he is personally in touch with the Delhi Police commissioner. "... The accused are currently absconding, and I have been assured that they will be apprehended at the earliest and dealt with as per law. We stand firmly with our three sisters, and their safety, dignity, and justice remain our highest priority," the chief minister said. Union Communications Minister Jyotiraditya M Scindia, who also handles the Ministry of Development of North Eastern Region (DoNER), said he was "deeply disturbed" by the racial harassment faced by the three young women from Arunachal Pradesh. "A minor residential issue escalating into abuse and intimidation rooted in prejudice is profoundly shameful," Scindia said. "... Any injustice against our brothers and sisters from the northeast will not be tolerated. Their safety and dignity are paramount to us." Other leaders who condemned the incident included former Manipur chief minister N Biren Singh, and Congress MP from Assam Gaurav Gogoi, who said the "incident cannot be dismissed as a routine dispute." Arunachal Deputy Chief Minister Chowna Mein said the "racial harassment faced by [the] three young women... is deeply condemnable and utterly unacceptable." "Such shameful behaviour has no place in a civilised society and goes against the spirit of unity and mutual respect that binds our nation together," he said. The deputy chief minister himself had once confronted a YouTuber, identified as Paras Singh, for making racist comments. The police in Punjab's Ludhiana had arrested Paras Singh and handed him over to their Arunachal counterpart. Paras Singh spent two weeks in the state capital Itanagar before the authorities let him go. Before returning home to Punjab, he apologised for his comments: "I realised I made a great mistake and hurt the sentiments of the people of Arunachal Pradesh and the northeast. I will try my best to win their hearts back."

What Happened In Malviya Nagar

On February 20, the women had called an electrician to install an air conditioner in their fourth-floor flat. During the installation, drilling debris fell to the floor below, prompting an aggressive reaction from their neighbours, Harsh Singh and Ruby Jain. What began as a disagreement quickly devolved into targeted harassment. "It was a small incident, but it blew up. We have registered an FIR because of the abusive language used against us and how they chose to describe us," said the UPSC aspirant, who has lived in the National Capital Region for more than two years. The women said they were subjected to offensive stereotypes. "I feel that because we look different and we can't speak Hindi that well, they think we are not a part of this country. They think we are from China or some other country. So they think that they can say anything to us, and the police will shield them," the student said. "I am from Arunachal. I am an Indian citizen, but people don't see us like that. Because they are uncivilised." A video of the incident showed the students and the couple engaged in a heated debate in the lobby of the fourth floor of the apartment complex.

From Slum To Villa: Bhopal Sisters Arrested In Alleged Conversion-Sex Racket

Bhopal: In a chilling case that has sent shockwaves through Madhya Pradesh's capital, two sisters from Bhopal have been arrested on charges of rape, forced religious conversion, and allegedly running a sex racket under the guise of providing jobs to vulnerable young women. The accused, Amreen and Afreen, were picked up by police along with their associate Chandan Yadav after two women, aged 21 and 32, approached Bagh Sewania police station on Sunday night with separate but strikingly similar complaints. Three other accused, Bilal, Chanu, and Yasir, remain absconding. Police sources revealed that the sisters, who once lived in a modest slum dwelling in Abbas Nagar, had recently shifted to a lavish villa in Sagar Royal Villas in Bhopal. Investigators believe the move was financed through illegal earnings generated by exploiting young women.

According to officials, the duo allegedly targeted girls from economically weaker backgrounds, offering them domestic jobs with a monthly salary of Rs 10,000, free accommodation, food, and what they described as a "high-profile lifestyle." But what began as employment allegedly turned into a nightmare.
